Acceptable Behaviour Agreement

The Department of Local Government, Housing and Community Development takes public housing safety seriously and uses Acceptable Behaviour Agreements as a tool to manage antisocial behaviour in and around public housing.

An Acceptable Behaviour Agreement (agreement) is a written agreement between you and the CEO (Housing) where you agree not to engage in antisocial behaviour in or around your public housing premises. The agreement applies to you, recognised occupiers and your visitors.

What is Antisocial Behaviour?

Behaviour is antisocial if it:

- Involves abusive or violent behaviour directed to a person; or
- Creates alarm or fear in, or annoyance to, neighbours or others in the vicinity; or
- Involves graffiti, littering or vandalism.

The Department classes antisocial behaviour into three categories.

Minor antisocial behaviour

Minor antisocial behaviour is conduct that causes annoyance from a public housing premises, including behaviour on land next to or opposite the premises.

Examples include:

- Nuisance from you, recognised occupiers, and visitors who are at the premises with your consent
- Excessive noise from televisions, stereos, radios, motor vehicles, parties or behaviour that interferes with the reasonable peace and privacy of neighbours
- Offensive/foul language that interferes with the reasonable peace and privacy of neighbours or causes annoyance to neighbours or others nearby, including Department staff and/or contractors.

Moderate antisocial behaviour

Moderate antisocial behaviour is abusive behaviour directed to a person, or behaviour that causes fear or alarm to neighbours or others nearby, including behaviour on land next to or opposite the premises.

Examples include:

- Threatening, intimidating, abusive, frightening and harassing behaviour directed at others, including Department staff and/or contractors
- Verbal abuse that creates alarm or fear in neighbours or others nearby, including Department staff and/or contractors
• Moderate damage to public housing property and/or neighbours that is intentionally caused or permitted.

Serious antisocial behaviour

Serious antisocial behaviour is violent behaviour caused or permitted by you towards any person near the public housing premises. This includes behaviour on land next to or opposite the premises, or vandalism or damage to public housing property.

Examples include:

• Abusive, aggressive and/or frightening behaviour directed at others that extends beyond verbal abuse, including behaviour directed at Department staff and/or contractors
• Threats to the health and safety of a person
• Use or threatened use of a weapon in a person’s possession
• Physical assault and acts of violence.

When is Acceptable Behaviour Agreement required?

The Department considers your history, including the history of any recognised occupiers.

If the Department reasonably believes that you or a recognised occupier are likely to engage in antisocial behaviour, you may be required to enter into an agreement.

Do I have to enter into an Acceptable Behaviour Agreement?

If you refuse or fail to enter into the agreement, the Department may seek to terminate your tenancy and take possession of the premises under the Residential Tenancies Act 1999.

You have up to 28 calendar days to consider the agreement before signing.

What happens if I breach my Acceptable Behaviour Agreement?

The Department may seek to terminate your tenancy under the Residential Tenancies Act 1999 and take possession of the premises if the agreement is seriously or repeatedly breached.

Can I receive demerit points while on an Acceptable Behaviour Agreement?

Yes. You can still be issued demerit points for substantiated incidents of antisocial behaviour.

If you have active demerit points issued the under the Red Card policy, you may also be required to enter into an agreement.

The Department may seek to terminate the tenancy before six demerit points are issued if the terms of the agreement are repeatedly or seriously breached.
